1. Reference c poses two problems:

a. Medical service at government expense for employees stationed abroad.

b. Evacuation at government expense of dependents of employees stationed abroad, in case of medical emergency.

2. The problem referred to in paragraph 1a above has been studied in the light of the provisions of Public Law 110. An appropriate administrative instruction has been drafted and will be published in the near future, authorizing all benefits possible under the law.

3. A provision for medical benefits (including travel) for dependents of employees serving abroad was included in initial drafts of Public Law 110 submitted to the Bureau of the Budget and the appropriate congressional committee. In both instances such provision was disapproved. A further effort at this time to obtain special congressional approval for such benefits would unquestionably receive unfavorable action.
